

The capacity of the sewage system is overloaded.

P.O.V STATEMENT

STAKEHOLDER

Cities
Wastewater treatment industry

INDUSTRY SECTOR

Wastewater Treatment Industry

by Bartosz Wilkuzs Sewage plant Mannheim

SIGNIFICANCE OF ISSUE

The capacity of the sewage systems in most cities is overloaded. Since population numbers and inhabitants of cities are growing, most of the pipes are not dimensioned big enough to keep up with the growing number of users. Problems with this are that the sewers then can overflow, spilling wastewater into the streets and into the groundwater. This wastewater can make humans seriously ill.

SOURCES

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Sanitary_sewer_overflow
https://de.dwa.de/files/_media/content/03_THEMEN/Entw%3%A4sse-rungssysteme/Kanalumfrage/Zustand%20der%20Kanalisation%202015.pdf